The Constitution as it Ought to Be. We neglected to notice at the time it was published, the Democratic Congressional Address which was given to the public at the close of the late session, as the keynote of the approaching political campaign: The Address is atoo dengthy and elaborate to have any effect or influence upon the masses of that maliguant element of our voting population that is so significantly described by the modern term cop- his individual case, includes everything perhead, inasmuch as the majority of the the rank and file of that faction are not in a condition to reason very closely upon any subject. It is the strong ment of the doctrine made expressly for politicians, in the appearance at Washington of Rebel and contains very little of the pure mild for simple democratic voters. The Address is remarkable for many things, but for none so much as the new constitutional theory that is partly enunciated in the extract quoted below. The simple-minded democrat who has heard the great apostles of his political faith, bawl themselves hearse to book, Davis had instructed them to say, the country through which he has passed; about "the constitution as it is," will be "Wo demand independence, and will the facilities afforded the enemy by mounslightly astonished at reading what follows, provided he has sufficient penetration to make it out. The settled purpose; of the other words, the Constitution of the United States as our fathers made it, having upon trial been found faulty and inadequate, it must be so amended as to remedy those manifest defects. This is certainly a remarkable and unexpected admission coming from the quarter it does. It was expected the opposition would go into the next canvass with "Constitution as it is" emblazoned upon their banners, but behold "a new gospel 1 give unto you" which is that the present terrible war is to be attributed to the defects in the constitution-so says the Ad dress-and it needs "suplementing." Here is progress evidently, but in what direction? Does our Democratic friends propose to amend the constitation in such a manner that the nation under it shall spring up to the full roulization of the hopes of its founders, so that freedom and not slavery shall be the dominant idea? Do the Vallandighams, and the Woods, and the Soymours intend to vote for a proposition in the Chicago Convention to amend the constitution so that human chattlehood shall hereafter be impos. chiefs, that no terms can be made with the ly heavy buttles, and the destruction of sible under it? Washington, July 20. The next great event will be Sperman's victory or defeat at Atlanta. The tone of their papers show that the rebels expect disaster. If their expectations are realized, the severest blow yet dealt out to the rebellion will have been inflicted. Practically, that point and its approaches are of more importance to the rebels than Richmond. And yet, because of its moral effect upon their cause, they would rather lose Atlanta than Richmond. The Boston Trure'ler says there are about one hundred and fifty hips now in that port, for which there is no busines except the coal trade; that there are one hundred vessels on their way to Boston from distant fore gn ports, with large and valuable cargoes; some of the articles are for the manufacturers, and are wanted; others, such as groceries, fruits and luxuries, are not wanted, and will find a dult market. Says the Traveller: " Vast quantities of goods are piled up in our warehouses, that will not be wanted this year, and if holders wish to realize, we advis them to ship them to Europe and kell the exchange at the present high rates. We can tell them that there is going to be such a diminution in consumption as this country never saw, and holders at present pri ces, will have to look at their casks of sugar, chests of tea, and bags of coffee for many a month before they see the pile diminish much."

Tun Traveller urges that "the whole community must be determined that prices hall come down." Let our banks," says that journal, "rofuse to discount a note but will enable parties to hold up still ligher their merchandise. By regidly adopting this course, they will help the whole community, and before the rigors of another winter set in, we shall, see many. staples at one half: their present prices. THE BOUNTY SUBSCRIPTION. -- Agreeably to the suggestions of the Common Ocunci. Bounty Committee, a committe consisting of one from each Ward, has had in circula tion to-day a subscription paper for the purpose of giving those subject to draft, and yet who have no property to tax, an opportunity to do something toward raising a bounty to obtain men to fill the city quota. This is a sensible idea, and we have no doubt that very many will avail themselves of the opportunity offered to aid in this matter. The property owners very justly think that the men who are not liable to tax ought to do something toward raising the necessary fund, and we have no doubt very many of this class will feil it a privilege to do it. The Constitution as it dught to Be.

We neglected to notice at the time it was published, the Democratic Congressional Address which was given to the public at the close of the late session, as the keynote of the approaching political campaign. The Address is itoo longthy and elaborate to have any effect or influence upon the masses of that maliguant element of our voting population that is so significantly described by the modern term copperhead, inasmuch as the majority of the the rank and file of that faction are not in a condition to reason very closely upon any subject. It is the strong meat of the doctrine mude expressly for politicians, and contains very little of the pure mild for simple democratic voters. The Address is remarkable for many things; but for none so much as the new constitutional theory that is partly enunciated in the extract quoted below. The simple-minded democrat who has heard the great apostles of his political faith, bawl themselves hourse about "the constitution as it is," will be slightly astonished at reading what follows, provided he has sufficient penetration to make it out. Read the extract:

"An adequate, real, efficient check in gov. ernment, securing a balance of power be-tween political interests, is unquestionably the highest and most important point in constitutional science; and it is most ovident that because our system has been found defective in this particular, we are new involved in war and scourged by mis government in the most intolerable, odi one and lawless forms. The checks already provided in our Constitution, and which have been so salutury in their action and influence upon the Government, must be supplemented by some proper provision which shall more perfectly perform the office and function for which they were So, the constitution as it is, is not exactly the thing after all the clamor that has been raised in its favor. "The checks already provided," says the Address, "must be supplemented by provisions that shall more perfectly perform the functions for which they were designed!" Or, in other words, the Constitution of the United States as our fathers made it, having upon trial been found faulty and inadequate, it must be so amended as to remedy those manifest defects.

This is certainly a remarkable and unexpected admission coming from the quarter it does. It was expected the opposition would go into the next canvass with "Constitution as it is" emblazoned upon their banners, but behold "a new gospel I give anto you" which is that the present terrible war is to be attributed to the defects in the constitution-so says the Ad dress-and it needs "suplementing." Here: is progress evidently, but in what direction? Does our Democratic friends propose to amend the constitation in such a manner that the nation under it shall spring up to the full realization of the hopes of its founders, so that freedom and not slavery shall be the dominant idea? Do the Vallandighams, and the Woods, and the Seymours intend to vote for a proposition in the Chicago Convention to amend the constitution so that human chattlehood shall hereafter be imposaible under it? No; this is not the kind of "supplementing" the Constitution will ever get at the hands of these democratic tinkers. Another sentence gives us an idea of what they think real, and efficient check-in Government, securing a balance of power in political interests," says the Address. The oldest political student whose eye scans these lines will have to think more than once before he can call to mind the occasion, when the Democratic party controled the Government and slaveholders filled its offices and dictated its policy, that ... political interests? needed any additional constitutional safeguards in their opinion. It was not until the people had issued their writ of ouster against a wicked and corrupt set of arrogant officials and hurled them from power, that it was discovered necessary to protect political interests by constitutional restrictions that should annul the wishes of the people at the ballot box. "We, the people," says the preamble, "do ordain and establish this constitution;" but under the copperhealdispensation the people are to be ignored as the vitalizing and inspiring cause or element of power in the government and political interests substituted. What say the people? Are they ready for the transfer?

We are not fighting for Slavery. We are fighting for Independence, and that, or extermination, we will have?"

Let us, for the argument's sake, admit The Post's premises, and from that clatform consider the justice and force of

When Horace Walpole, on his return from Rome, was asked it he had convertd the Pope, he candidly confessed that he had not; adding, by way of explanation, that he was unable to offer that gendeman anything better than his already possessed. For a kindred; and lobyious ceason, Jofferson Davis is naturally the last man in the Confederacy to consent to a restaration of the Union on whatever, terms. For he is now one of the potentates of earth, ruling with despetic sway a spa-...ud, to smolllim laraves, bas erique, snoic man beings'; and there is no conceivable, at least no tolerable reconstruction which would not seriously diminish his power ind-consequence. He, unque tionably, is highing for independence"—which, in his individual lease, includes everything lse-since he has not a slave left. If ever he consents to a "reconstruction," if will he because he has no alternative.

Now; then, we will suppose that the exchange of notes at Niagara had resulted in the appearance: at Washington of Rebel Commissioners, upon their assurance that they had (or would promptly obtain) full powers to propose and accept terms of seace. Of course, they would have been morally and every way bound to proffer such terms-our. Government simply standing still and requiring light upon points which those terms did not make lear. The Military Situation.

"(Editorial Cor. Albany Evening Journa'.) Day Sale Washington, July 20.

The next great event will be Sherman's victory or defeat at Atlantate The tone of their papers show that the rebels expectdisaster. Af their Sexpectations are realized, the severest blow yet dealt out to the rebellion will have been inflicted. Practically, that point and its approaches are of more importance to the rebels than Richmond. And yet, because of its moral effect upon their cause, they would rather lose Atlanta than Richmond. The full of both, however, is "a consummation devoutly to be wished." The war will not end until this is effected; or, what would be equivalent, the armies defending both are destroyed.

If Sherman shall capture Atlanta, he will have accomplished the greatest achievement of the war. The magnitude of the undertaking cannot be understood by simply measuring the distance from Chattanough to Atlanta. The proprietary history tof the World is a chequered one . It was started on a high strung religious and moral hasis; collapsed on that diet, and the lank and fleshless bones of the old gasping Courier and En quire, were thrown to it as life sustaining morrels. It subsequently went through a course of Scotch herrings, London porter, inen trowsers and straw hats under one Sandy Cummings, a government contrac-tor; then tried the India rubber diet, under one Comstock : ran up, as it before had run down, the theatres and free concerts, ind for a time way kept alive by Jack Anderson. Fernanda. Wood and radace fobile co. Nogd used it for a time in 1862 as a mouth piece and b bbyr swat: Anderson sold his interest to this monito-law, pludge Bernard, and it finally fell into the hands of Sam Barlow, a smart politician ; Elun Comstock, a harmless representative of the celebrated Comstock damity and a proprietor of the New York Hotel, by whom it is now owned, in conjunction with some others, with Mr. Manton Marde as the manager. A BEAUTIFUL VISITATION .- One: of the unaccountable phenomena of 1804/says a San Francisco paper, has been the im mense multitude of song birds which have been driven upon the cultivated lands o California during the month of May. In the southern counties, thousands thousands of robbins, linnets, thrushes, canaries, orioles, humming-birds, finches. blackbirds, magpies, sparrows, &c., have swarmed round houses and gardens, destroying the fruit and vogetables, and then dropping down dead near wells and pools of water. The mortality among them hu been most extraordinary, and is supposed to have been caused by their being driven from the mountains by the April storm of cold, when not finding food in the valleys and low-lands, they are killed by the cats, and explicing in weak (wittles, mourn ful to the sympathies of the little people

No Rights for Sale at Present. E. P. DOTT. A UCTION AND COMMISSION

If men lived to that all their graces were attractive and beautiful; we should not need balf so much oreaching as we do now. It is the beauty of piety in those who in-terest themselves in their welfare that wins one and another from the error of their ways, and leads them to the service of Christ. And as we grow up in true god-liness, our foundations being laid of procious stones, we become temples of the Hilly Chust, wherein shall dwell the God of heauty forevermore. Christian brothren, let us not only look well to it that we are in the ordinary sense good, but let us re-member that we are to carry out goodness in its most attractive forms. We are to see to it that the spirit of God does not suffer in our hands, or by our representation. Poetry may be ruined by the way it is read. One voice shall make music of it, and another shall make it cacophony. The book Christian graces may be carried so that the world shall revile them; and any man that causes a Christian grace to be reviled, causes his Master to be trodden under to it. It is a very solemn thing to be a Christian. It is solemn because it is responsible—solemn for your own sake, for your children's sake and for the sake of your companions. May the God of glory, who is fashioning us that we may shine as lights in his heavenly kingdom, give us, each and every one on earth, by the heauty of holinoss, to recommend the Christian life, and to bring men into it.—Be cher. The hum in conscience has to deal with immediate problems, to feel for immediate supports. Human love spends itself upon the claims and sufferings that are nea est to it, and God himself cannot reach them a arm's-length, or sanctify them with a mere look across the ages. first becomes a revelation to us—the power of God, and the wisdom of God—when he is approached, not in his solitary individuality, but as standing for our humani-ty forever. We shall all of us ty forever. . . . We shall all of us have that two-fold affiliation which has been faisely fixed upon him alone. Born of nature, born of God, we, too, must fight with temptations; we, too, have a baptism to be baptized with, and how are we straitened till it be accomplished? It is not the mere story of Jesus—it is not his pic-ture that redeems us—not anything set up at a distance, and taken at second-hand All this first becomes a spiritual power SUMMER TRADE NOW OPENED whom it carries us past itself, into that intimate union with God which it exhibits as our true life .- Reccher

RELIGION LEGY OUT .- The Christian Inquirer says, that as a certain gentleman was soliciting subscribers for the Inquirer he called on a cortain farmer, who retused to subscribe, on the ground that he took so many papers for his family that he needed no more. Mr. — asked what papers he took. The furmer replied that he took a political paper, an agricultural paper, and a magazine of fashlons. Mr. — then answered, very wisely and very shrewdly, It seems, then, that you must have agriculture, politics, and the fushions all represented in your family, but religion you do MERCHANDISE not deen to be necessary." The farmer immediately subscribed.

COTTSCHALK ON KNABE. [Translated from the French.]
After having played on the Franco of Mesers. Knaba & Co., it is impossible not to bear testimony to their qualities, which have acquired for their the eminent reputation which they enjoy. The Planco of their manufacture, on which I have played, are exceedingly remarkable for their qualities. The bass is powerful without havehouse, and the upper notes as ect, clear and harmeniously mellow, (chrystatine,) and I do not heedtate to express in regard to these instruments my entire satisfaction, and to declare that they are equal if not reperfor to the bear manufactured in Europe or this country by the most celebrated makers.
